SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

Full Weekly Review—Specially Reported and Telegraphed to The Oregonian.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 11.—The Commercial News says: Receipts of wheat yesterday were very light, and offerings were also limited and held at rather higher rates. The English market showed some improvement in tone, though quotations were unaltered except for cargoes off coast and just shipped, both showing a slight decline. The demand here was not brisk, but the sales were sufficient to establish prices at $1 27½@1 30 for No. 2, an. $1 32½@1 35 for No. 1. Very choice milling was held at $1 37½, but no one seemed willing to pay that price.

Barley and oats are very dull at quotations. Corn is coming in freely and prices are easier.

The list of vessels loading for this port keeps steady, and it is evident that we shall go into the new crop year with a good supply of tonnage bound for this port. None of the vessels now loading at ports of Great Britain and Atlantic ports of this country can arrive here before July 1st. There are but 140 days left of the present crop year, and unless ships are on the way it is not safe to calculate on their arrival before that date. Charters reported yesterday showed a firmer feeling in freights than was generally looked for; but with more than half the grain necessary to load the fleet in port already on board ship, and but two disengaged vessels in port, there is no reason why the market should not continue firm.
